HOW DO I “VERIFY BEFORE I BUY” AN INVESTMENT?

Before giving them your money, always investigate investment advisers (sometimes called investment or financial planners), securities salespeople (sometimes called brokers, stockbrokers, or agents), the firms for which they work (dealer or brokerage firms), and the investment (securities offering) they want you to buy.

GET IT IN WRITING!

Whatever an adviser or a securities salesperson tells you about himself or herself, about the investment he or she is offering to you, or about the company or people in which you would be investing, get what you are told in writing. Anyone offering an investment opportunity to you should provide an offering memorandum—a complete description of the investment and the people and risks involved with the investment. READ THE OFFERING MEMORANDUM! If you do not understand it, get help from an accountant, lawyer, or another independent third party who does understand how to read an offering memorandum.

ASK QUESTIONS ABOUT YOUR ADVISER OR SALESPERSON.

Talk to your adviser or salesperson and insist that he or she answers your questions to your satisfaction. Write down the answers you are given, the name of who gives you the answers, and the date. Ask:

- What commission or fee will you earn if I buy the investment?
- Who or what entity will be paying you?
- Will you be receiving any benefit other than your commission of fee if I buy the investment?
- Are you related to or involved with the investment in any way other than recommending that I buy it?
- Are you registered or licensed and, if so, with whom? If you are not registered or licensed with a regulatory agency, why not?

- Have you ever you ever been sued, disciplined, or had any complaints filed relating to your work as a salesman or adviser?

INDEPENDENTLY RESEARCH THE BACKGROUND OF YOUR ADVISER OR SALESPERSON.

If you are dealing with an investment adviser, check the IAPD (Investment Adviser Public Disclosure web site: www.adviserinfo.sec.gov) to see if the investment adviser is licensed in Arizona, how long the adviser has been licensed, and whether or not the adviser has any disciplinary history. If you do not have access to the IAPD, contact the Securities Division at 602-542-4242 or toll free at 1-866-VERIFY-9 (within Arizona).

Also, check out the investment adviser representative (the individual dealing with you, who works for the investment adviser) by contacting the Securities Division.

If you are dealing with a salesperson, check out the individual and the dealer for which the salesperson works on the Web CRD (Central Registration Depository) to see if the salesperson and dealer are registered in Arizona, for how long, and whether they have any disciplinary history (www.finra.org). If you do not have Internet access, contact the Securities Division at 602-542-4242 or toll-free (within Arizona) at 1-866-VERIFY-9.

ASK QUESTIONS ABOUT THE INVESTMENT.

Ask your salesman, your adviser, and the officers or directors of the company in which you may make an investment all of the questions you have about the investment until you understand it and are comfortable. Write down the answers you are given, the name of the person who gives you the answers, and the date.

Ask: Is the investment registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission or the Arizona Securities Division? If not, why not? If the investment is exempt from registration, what is the nature of the exemption? Is a notice regarding this exempt offering on file with the SEC or the Securities Division? If not, why not?

NOTE: The fact that a particular investment is registered, or exempt from registration, is not a guarantee as to how that investment will perform, or that it is an appropriate investment for you. If you need assistance understanding an investment and when it is suitable to invest in that type of investment, seek assistance from an accountant, attorney, or independent adviser.

Understand the fundamental nature of the investment. Understand the tax implications of the nature of the investment. Understand your rights as a creditor or an owner if the entity in which you are investing goes bankrupt.

Is it a debt offering? If you invest in a debt offering (notes, bonds, debentures), you will become a creditor. If the offered security is a debt obligation, who will repay your investment to you? Will you get interest; how much? Is your investment, the debt obligation, secured or guaranteed? If so, by what or whom?

Is it an equity (stock) offering? If you obtain an equity interest in an entity, you become an owner. Will you own shares of stock in a corporation? Will you own a partnership interest or a limited liability company membership interest? Will you have any control over how the entity is run? Will you receive dividends?

Is the investment “liquid”? Can you sell the investment if and when you want to? Is there a market—are other buyers interested in the investment? Will you be able to get your entire investment back? Do you have to hold the investment for a specific period of time? Will you have to pay penalties if you sell the investment earlier?

NOTE: Most securities offerings do not contain a “buy-back” feature and if you need to get your money back, you will likely have to attempt to sell the investment on the “secondary market” if one exists. If you have to sell your investment in a secondary market, you may have to sell for a substantial discount from the original amount of your investment.

What type of business are you investing in? Is it an established business with an operating history? If so, what is that history? If not, does the proposed business make sense? Is it likely to be successful?

Who is responsible for operating the business in which you are investing? Do those persons have the necessary skill, experience, and training to operate the business?

What risks are you taking by making the investment? What factors may jeopardize the success of the business undertaking?

What factors may jeopardize your ability to recover your investment and make a return on that investment?

NOTE: Once you thoroughly understand the types of business risks and market risks involved with the investment, you need to assess your financial position and risk tolerance. Can you afford or are you willing to take those risks?
